In 2015, through the ongoing revitalization of the AFC continuum of care, the organization moved towards a more comprehensive approach to support service delivery. As part of this effort, the organization undertook a strategic plan that included a focus on improving access to care, increasing engagement in care, and expanding health equity on a local and national level.

Our Vision
The AIDS Foundation of Chicago mobilizes communities and related chronic diseases while bringing an end to the HIV epidemic. Positive Momentum, a strategic plan, is now in its third year of implementation.

Positive Momentum: A 2016-18 Strategic Plan

In its 30th year, AFC forged a transformative plan to support people living with HIV. The plan focuses on four key areas: expanding access to care, increasing engagement in care, expanding health equity, and strengthening policy and advocacy initiatives.

AFC’s Policy and Advocacy department led the fight against HIV service cuts at the state level throughout 2016. AFC’s Action Tank. HIV Prevention Justice Alliance played a leadership role among national partners to block bills that would undermine HIV care. The organization also launched the Health Equity initiative, which engaged with 386 highly vulnerable communities.

AFC’s case managers connected 239 individuals to health insurance payments for rent, utilities, and other expenses. They also provided support to 156 youth who received a long-term housing subsidy, and 142 individuals who received one-time emergency payments for rent, utilities, and other expenses.

AFC offered 2,000 opportunities for people living with HIV to save money on monthly medications, and supported the groundbreaking PrEP4Love campaign through HIVHealthReform.org.
